

WONG YEOK LIN Autism Consultant & Psychologist

MS WONG YEOK LIN is a registered psychologist with the Singapore Psychological Society. She graduated with a Bachelor of Psychology (Honors) from the National University of Singapore and Masters in Child Development (Distinction) from Institute of Education, London, UK. She has also undergone advanced training in the approaches of Structured Teaching with Division TEACCH of the University of North Carolina, United States of America.

For the past 10 years, Ms Wong has worked, in a clinical capacity, with children of various special needs, in particular, children with Autism Spectrum Disorders. In her clinical practice, she has incorporated and blended approaches to make intervention and learning programmes more meaningful and effective for children with autism.

Prior to joining the special needs field, Ms Wong has had 7 years of experience as a Senior Counselor in the Ministry of Defence. During that time, she counseled adolescents and young adults with adjustment difficulties. She has also tutored undergraduate students majoring in psychology in the Singapore Institute of Management Open University Programme.

Ms Wong currently holds the position of Consultant at Pathlight School, the first autism school in Singapore offering a unique blend of mainstream academics and life skills. She is the Head of Pathlight School's vocational track, a programme aimed at preparing students for future employment. Ms Wong is also a valued member of Autism Resource Centre (Singapore)'s team of consultants to Eden School, a special school offering a vocational education pathway to children and youths with moderate to severe autism.
